

MEMPHIS APPEAL.

ALBERT PIKE & CO.

Vera Atque Honesta Dicere.

For President of the United States,

ANDREW JOHNSON,

OF TENNESSEE.

Subject only to the decision of the National Democratic Convention.

PLATFORM OF THE TENNESSEE DEMOCRACY.

1st. The Democratic man of Tennessee, putting aside all questions decided by the war, except the title of "Democrat," and formally uniting themselves with the Democratic party as it now exists.

2d. The question of the right of a State to secede from the Union has been decided by arms, and that decision should be accepted as final and conclusive.

3d. Nevertheless, while the Constitution makes the Federal Government supreme, it is so only with well defined limitations and restrictions, and the States large rights and powers over their domestic concerns, and making them equal in respect of such rights; and that rights have not been invaded by the result of the war, or the powers of the Federal Government arrogated by it to the endangerment of public liberty.

4th. The extinguishing of African Slavery is recognized as a fact, ratified by a binding Constitutional Amendment.

5th. The investment of negroes with the right of suffrage, by the Congress of the United States, and the difference of white men, by the same authority, is a gross usurpation of power, and a policy unjust, unwise, and unwarranted, leading to a state of civil war.

6th. The faithful of the nation pledged to the payment of the national debt according to the terms of the law under which the bonds were issued, and not otherwise. The time of payment of the bonds ought not to be extended; the principal of the five-twenty bonds ought to be paid in currency, and the money granted to the National banks to be withdrawn.

7th. The Government bonds should be taxed in the hands of the bondholders, equally with other property.

8th. The doctrines and practices of the Radical party, which endeavor, by encroaching upon the powers of the Executive and Judicial branches of the Government, to subvert in the Legislative Department all powers, legal and constitutional, and to establish a Dictatorial Government and the civil liberties of the people.

9th. Equal and exact justice to all men, of whatever State or persuasion, religious or political; peace, commerce and amicable relations with those nations, embracing alliances with none; the support of the State Government in all their rights, as the most competent administration of the domestic concerns, and the strictest watch against anti-Republican tendencies; the preservation of the general Government, against all encroachments, as the best security for the rights of the States; a jealous care of the rights of election by the people, and the maintenance of the civil or the military authority.

10th. Andrew Johnson, the first choice of the Democratic party, to unite in selecting another as the candidate for the Presidency.

THE CONVENTION.

A National Convention never assembled in this country around which was gathered the thronging hopes of the people, in no other degree, as that which will convene in the city of New York on the 4th of July.

The gloom that hangs over the Republic will be dispelled, if the Convention should succeed in harmonizing all conflicting interests, prejudices and passions and presenting for the support of the people names which can happily combine the elements of a successful campaign, and fidelity to the great principles of our Constitution. This will be the great duty of the Convention. Every prejudice should be cast out, every patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come. Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

The Convention should entertain no proposition which can possibly result in a division of the people, as in 1860, Charleston and Baltimore in 1860.

They should see to it that no reputation is allowed of those harrowing scenes which produced the dismemberment of the great party upon whose success, or that of its no less patriotic Whig ally—dependent the peace of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people for many years then to come.

Such a forwarding as that should forever be a joy of his country with every weapon of patience, charity and reconciliation which is so necessary to peace, where conflicting interests constantly challenge to belligerence and criminal words.

BY TELEGRAPH.

Night Dispatches.

GEORGIA.

ST. LOUIS.

ST. LOUIS, June 26.—Judge Wm. R. Allen, who has been editorially connected with the St. Louis Republican some twelve years, is dead.

RICHMOND.

RICHMOND, June 26.—The commander of the State Guard was removed by Gov. Wells, and Col. Egbert, formerly of the United States army, appointed instead.

NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, June 26.—An affair occurred at Victor's restaurant last night, in which Maj. Frank Manney, of Nashville, was stabbed and injured by an unknown man, who made his escape.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

CHARLESTON, June 26.—Gen. Scott, Governor-elect, has issued an appointment, governing the Legislature on the 6th of July, in accordance with the provisions of the constitution, for the ratification of the 14th amendment.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 26.—It is reported that Gov. Seymour is to be President of the National Democratic Convention.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 26.—The colored Democratic Club, from Brandon, numbering 200, is here to contest the election of Democrats at the election to be held in a torch-light procession two miles in length, paraded to-night.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 26.—The late Prince Michael left with his wife and daughter, and two nephews his heirs.

NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, June 26.—During the stay of Prince Napoleon at Bucharest, a deputation of Jews presented a respectful address for Emperor Napoleon, asking an amelioration of their condition, and thanking the Emperor for his liberality towards all races of people.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Prof. Whittier, U. S. A., has been detailed as Professor of the military service at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Second Lieutenant, Loyal Farragut, U. S. A., who joins the squadron of the Ironclad, is here.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Senate has passed a bill for the relief of the military service at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.

WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The receipts for customs for the week ending the 20th were $2,431,394.